Co-creation Perspective of Archaeological Conservation Proposals (Italy-UK)

University of Cagliari | Department of Civil-Environmental Engineering and Architecture &
University of Portsmouth | Portsmouth School of Architecture

Inter-University Workshop | 8-11th March 2023

Are you interested in joining a co-creation activity to engage with archaeological conservation proposals and the development of our evidence of the past?

We are inviting you to join the "Co-creation Perspective of Archaeological Conservation Proposals (Italy-UK)" workshop to work in teams made of UK and Italian students to develop archaeological conservation perspectives for Sardinian prehistoric sites called "domus de Janas". The workshop will aim to produce conceptual conservation plans including restoration strategies, accessibility, material and structural conservation, interpretations, protection and musealisation. This will be driven by theoretical understanding of the sites' key cultural significance and values. Thus, the workshop will equip you with the interdisciplinary understanding of heritage conservation in the context of archaeology and provide a great opportunity for exchanging knowledge and skills with other UK/Italian students.

Students will work divided in six international and interdisciplinary groups. The Italian students will receive 4 CFU.
