

Ok, imagine you have to drive your car in Swindon, and you're less than enthusiastic about it, since you only recently passed your test.

.
. .
. . .

And then you see this:

.
. .
. . .

You're starting to wonder what (the fuck) that's about. You didn't see anything like this in your driving lessons.

.
. .

And a bit further, you stumble across this situation

The magic roundabout !

Birds eye view....

In the peripheral roundabouts you turn clockwise, in the centre you turn anti-clockwise. As you can see, the traffic problem is essentially solved by scaring people into taking alternative routes.